And now China accuses Indian troops of 'crossing boundary', links Kailash yatra to standoff

KJM VARMA

BEIJING, JUN 27 (PTI):

China today lodged a protest with India over the alleged "crossing of boundary" by its troops in the Sikkim section and demanded their immediate withdrawal, as Beijing warned that future visits of Indian pilgrims to Kailash Man-sarovar will depend on the resolution of the standoff.

Our position to uphold our territorial sovereignty is un-wavering. We hope the Indian side can work with China in the same direction and immediately withdraw the personnel who have overstepped and trespassed into Chinese border," Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Lu Kang told a media briefing here.

"We have lodged solemn representations in Beijing and New Delhi to elaborate on our solemn position," he said.

About the fate of the pilgrims headed to Kailash and Mansarovar, who had returned to Gangtok after denial of permission by China to enter Tibet through Sikkim, Lu said their visit was called off because of security reasons.

He also linked future visits of pilgrims to India "withdrawing the troops" from the area.

"As to Indian pilgrims' jour ney through Nathu La pass at Sikkim section, I think the Indian side is very clear about this. For a long time Chinese government has made enormous efforts to provide the neces-sary convenience to those Indi-an pilgrims," Lu said.

"But recently the Indian border personnel trespassed Chinese border to obstruct our construction, we have taken necessary actions. Out of security consideration we have to put off the pilgrimage by the Indian pilgrims through the Chinese pass," he said.

"On the upcoming actions, we have to depend on what the Indian side will do. They have to take action to improve the security situation," Lu said.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson Geng Shuang last night said, "China urges India to immediately withdraw its border guards that have crossed the boundary and have a thorough investigation of this matter."

"The Indian border guards crossed the boundary in the Sikkim section of the China-India border and entered the territory of China, and obstructed normal activities of Chinese frontier forces in the Donglang area recently, and the Chinese side has taken counter-measures," he said in a statement.

His statement came after the Chinese Defence Ministry accused the Indian troops of objecting to building a road in what it claimed to be Chinese territory.

The dispute over construction of a road was apparently the reason why China stopped a batch of 47 Indian pilgrims from crossing through Nathu

GIM activists burn copies of GTA accord in hills

DARJEELING (WB), JUN 27 (PTI): Intensify-ing their agitation for Gorkhaland, Gorkha Janmukti Morcha activists today held demonstrations and burnt copies of the GTA accord in the hills on the 13th day of the indefinite shutdown.

Some GJM activists were seen participating the demonstration bare-chested and broke tube lights on their backs leading to injuries.

Hundreds of GJM supporters burnt copies of the Gorkha Territori-al Administration (GTA) accord at Chowkbazar as the security forces kept a strict vigil.

GJM sources said that now there is no entity of GTA in the hills.

"We don't want GTA We want Gorkhaland. We will continue our agitation for a separate state We will not participate in election to GTA," a GJM leader said.

"By burning the GTA accord we ended rela-tions with the state government," he said.

All the 45 elected members of GTA who belonged to GJM had resigned last week.

The Centre, the state government and GJM had signed the GTA in 2011.

GTA had three hill subdivisions Darjeeling, Kurseong and Mirik and some areas of Siliguri subdivision of Darjeeling district and the whole of Kalimpong district under its authority.

Situation along China border in Sikkim reviewed after incursion

New Delhi, Jun 27 (PTI): The situation along the Sino- Indian border was reviewed today at a high-level meeting convened by the Centre following tension in the forward areas in Sikkim after a scuffle between personnel of the Indian Army and the People's Liberation Army (PLA).

The meeting, attended by representatives of the Army and the Indo Tibetan Border Police, besides the home ministry, took stock of the border, particularly in Sikkim, officials said.

According to sources, the Sikkim government has sent a report to the Home Ministry giving details of the incursion

Of the 3,488-km-long Sino-Indian border from Jammu and Kashmir to km falls in Sikkim. The scuffle between the Indian Army and the PLA, led to Chinese troops damaging bun-kers on the Indian side of the border.

The incident hap-pened in the first week of June near the Lalten post in the Doka La gen-eral area after a face-off between the two forces, which triggered tension along the frontier.

Situation along the border in Sikkim is closely being monitored, an official said.

After the scuffle, China stopped the travel of Indian pilgrims to Kailash Mansarovar through the Nathu La border post in Sikkim.

Union home secre-tary Rajiv Mehrishi said 100 pilgrims were return to pg03

Burning copies of GTA agreement does not dilute its authority

SUDIPTA CHANDA SILIGURI, 27 JUN:

Some bloodletting by smashing tubelights on bare backs, observing the last rites of the Gorkhaland Territorial Administration (GTA) agreement and threats of self-immolation in future are the collectibles from the Gorkha Janmukti Morcha (GJM) sponsored pro-Gorkhaland demonstrations in the Darjeeling hills on Tuesday.

In a major departure from the past few days, Tuesday's demonstrations were peaceful and give hope that the movement is moving away from the violent path.

A catch remains, he

If GJM leader Binay Tamang's statements are taken into account, attempts of the state government to organize GTA elections in the hills or for any individual or political party to contest in such elections will have to be done at "own risk".

No veiled threat here, the warning message is amply clear. It will be interesting to watch how the state government responds to the caveat.

By burning copies of the GTA agreement the GJM leadership claimed it has severed the umbilical cord between the hills and the state govern-ment. But, that may not be factually correct.

If by resigning from the GTA and by trashing the agreement, the GIM believes it has delinked the state government from the hills, it has by the same logic scrapped the Centre's role too. It is important to remember that the Centre, state and the GJM were parties to the tripar-tite GTA agreement. Moreover, the GJM's walking out of the GTA or burning copies of it does not dilute the agreement. The GJM as one of the three parties has the right to come out of the GTA unilaterally. But the agreement is an official arrangement ratified by the Constitution. Its provisions do not become null and void just because one side chooses to walk out.

The other point where the GJM may still have to answer its brothers-in-arms is regarding its representatives in the West Bengal Legislative Assembly and the hill civic bodies. None of the MLAs or municipal councillors has resigned so far and continue to nain under the jurisdiction of the state government.

Then why the GTA alone has been the target? The tenure of the GTA is scheduled to end this month-end. Repudiating the agreement four days before its term ends gives rise to curiosity. With the GJM spelling in clear terms it will not allow fresh GTA elections, it now remains to be seen whether the state government continues to run the GTA through an administrator or, notifies fresh elections.

Another all-party meeting is scheduled in Darjeeling on June 29. The non-GIM parties are inclined to project the ongoing movement as a movement of the people, not by one political party. The GJM is likely to be asked to come clear on the point as it will surely be questioned why its elected representatives were not resigning from the State Assembly or the civic bodies.

Meanwhile, the BJP national think tank might have stirred out of slumber vis a vis the Darjeeling hill situation. It is learnt, the BJP national president Amit Shah is scheduled to take up the Darjeeling situation for discussion with party leaders from Bengal.

That might provide the key to open the randomly closing doors.

The party has further demanded the provision of an emergency tele-phone at every Primary Health Centre to ensure on-call ambulance service and suggested that this service be centralize through a server mainained in the Health Department headquarters.

An SKM press release issued by its secretary [press & publicity], Arun Uprety, alleges that the health service was in a deplorable condition in the State.

The release further alleges that although most of the PHCs have doctors and workers, patients still need to buy even a simple injection from outside the PHCs.

The release adds that it was difficult for patients to get a bed at the STNM Hospital and most of them are referred to Central Referral Hospital and thus people from underprivileged background are compelled to take loans for medical treatment.

The release claims that the party has also been receiving grievances from the people on not being able to use free ambulance services. Most of the PHCs in the State have set a rule for patients that they need to put fuel at their own cost in order to use the ambulance facility. Not every nerson can afford this the release points out.

The party has questioned the government on failing to provide free health services to the people of Sikkim and alleged that the government's claims of free health services has been limited to speeches and announcements only.

Golf Club incident clear case of racial discrimination: Rijiju

New Delhi, Jun 27 (PTI): Union Kiren Rijiju today de-scribed as a "clear case of racial discrimination" an incident at The Delhi Golf Club, when its staffers asked a woman from Meghalaya to leave a dining room because her traditional Khasi attire looked like a "maid's uniform". He asked Delhi Police Commissioner Amulya Patnaik to take appropriate ac-tion on the June 25 incident, which, he said, also reflected an "elitist mindset". Rijiju raised the matter with Patnaik after Meghalaya chief minister Mukul Sangma discussed the issue with the minister

"I will also speak to the urban development ministry on how such privileges can be given to people with such mindsets," he said about the club, which occupies prime land in the heart of the national capital.

An incensed Rijiju told reporters no one had the right to judge a person by his or her attire.

"It was a clear case of racial discrimination. Such an elitist mindset of some people will destroy the social fabric of the country," he said.

The minister of state for home, who is from Arunachal Pradesh, said the incident was "unfortu-nate and condemnable". "Action should be taken. Merely issu-ing a statement is not enough," he said.

The Meghalaya wom-an, Tailin Lyngdoh, was asked to leave the room because the club's staff-ers believed her traditional outfit looked like a "maid's uniform", her employer, Nivedita Bar-thakur Sondhi, told PTI.

The club issued a statement today, saying it had apologised to the club member who had invited Sondhi and her son's governess, Lyngdoh, to lunch. It also said the incident was being given a "political and cultural overtone".

The club must accept it was wrong and act accordingly, Rijiju said, adding that there was "no point" issuing a statement.

Sondhi meanwhile said that neither she nor Lyngdoh had been contacted by the club or received an apology from it.

India's tea exports may go up, prices to improve: ICRA

MUMBAI, JUN 27 (PTI): With the likelihood of a lower tea produc-tion in the global markets, the prospects of India's tea exports appear favourable, along with the positive impact on domestic prices this year, ICRA said today.

With Kenya and Sri Lanka, the major exporters of bulk tea, witnessing erratic cropping patterns thereby leading to supply side issues, the demand for Indian tea has increased in the global markets, the rating agency said in a report.
Export volumes during the first four months of CY2017 rose by around 5.7 per cent and the realisations also saw an increase, albeit modestly at 5.6 per cent, it said.

The continuation of such a favourable export scenario going forward, will have a positive impact on domestic prices as well. However, continuing cost pressures, primarily attributable to the increase in wage rates, would keep margins under check, ICRA said.

In the first four months of CY2017, black tea production in the major growing countries of India, Kenya and Sri Lanka witnessed a de-growth of 11 per cent, primarily due to significant drop in Kenyan production.

This decline in crop availability has led to firming up of prices at most auction centres globally. The auction prices in USD terms in Sri Lanka and Kenya have increased by 44 per cent and 24 per cent respectively, the report said.

Prices of Sri Lankan teas, which are mostly the orthodox variety, have surged to touch USD 4.08 per kg during the first four months of CY2017, as against USD 2.84/kg in the corresponding months last year; while Kenyan tea prices, which are entirely of the CTC variety, touched USD 2.98/kg, vis-a-vis USD 2.41/kg, it said.

India exports only around 20 per cent of the tea produced domestically. However, exports play a vital role in maintaining the overall demand-supply balance, and consequently price levels, in the domestic market.

"While the export performance in recent months is encouraging, the full year performance will be determined by the volumes during the period June to August, when most of the export contracts are

"With the likelihood of a lower tea production outside India in CY2017 and given the trend in international prices, the prospects of exports from India in the current year appear favourable," ICRA Vice-President and Sector Head, Corporate Sector Ratings, Kaushik Das said.

On the domestic front, during the first four months of CY17, prices witnessed a largely stable trend

- while prices at North Indian auc tion centres saw some softening on account of sale of carry forward teas from the previous season. On the other hand, prices at South Indian auction centres firmed up, the rating outfit said.

Domestic production wit-nessed a rise - driven by the surge in production in April - which off-set the declining trend in the first quarter of the year, it said.

Going forward, the overall trend in domestic production during CY 2017 will be largely determined by the cropping pattern in North In-dia during the peak tea-producing months of June to October.

The level of such production, combined with the export performance, would in turn determine the price levels in the domestic market in the current year given the continued steady growth in do-mestic demand, ICRA said.

"Based on initial trends, realisations, particularly for the better quality teas, in the current year are expected to remain firm. However, cost pressures will continue, which will limit the scope of margin expansion of bulk tea companies,"

La border in Sikkim into Tibet to visit Kailash Mansarovar.

Chinese defence ministry spokesman Ren Guoqiang said yesterday that recently China has begun the construction of a road in Donglang region, but was stopped by Indian troops crossing the Line of Actual Control (LAC).

his statement Geng said that the Sikkim section of the China-India boundary has been defined by treaties, noting that the Indian gov-ernment has repeatedly confirmed in writing that there is no objection to it.

China urges India respect boundary treaties and China's ter ritorial sovereignty to maintain peace and sta-bility at the China-India boundary, Geng said. In view of the above event, for safety reasons, China has to put off ar-ranging for the Indian pilgrims to enter China through the Nathu La pass, Geng said, adding that China has informed India of its decision through diplomatic channels.

The Nathu La Pass sits 4,545 metres above the sea level and is wedged between Yadong County in Xigaze Prefecture, Tibet Autonomous Region, and Sikkim.

Yesterday, Geng had also said that the foreign ministries of both the countries were in talks over this issue.

The Nathu La route, which is the second route for the Kailash vatra, was launched with fanfare by the two countries in 2015.

Till 2015, the yatra (journey) was being organised by External Affairs Ministry only through the Lipu Pass in Himalays connecting the Kumaon region of Ut-tarakhand with the old trading town of Taklakot in Tibet.
The Nathu La route

enabled pilgrims to trav-el 1500 km long route from Nathu La to Kailash The route through Nathu La reduced the hardship and journey time enabling many more pilgrims, in particular aged pilgrims, to undertake the yatra.

Geng's statement comes after tension mounted in a remote area of Sikkim following a scuffle between the personnel of the Indian Army and the PLA, leading to Chinese troops damaging bunkers on the Indian side of the border.

The incident happened in the first week of June near the Lalten post in the Doka La general area in Sikkim (near the Tri-Junction between India, China and Bhutan) after a face-off between the two forces, which triggered tension along the Sino-Indian frontier.

After the scuffle, the PLA entered Indian territory and damaged two make-shift bunkers of the Army.

dvertisement spots on television are not expect-Add to be profound, but sometimes the more entertaining ones can also be very illuminating. One such is the animated entertainer that tries to sell Mentos with its wonderful spin on how humans came to rule the world. If it does not screen anymore, and if you happen to belong to a generation which missed the original run, try YouTube, this gem is surely available there. As for the TV spot, it is all about allowing the brain to light up, experimenting and progressing – changing, evolving and growing up. Regressive attitudes and closed minds are signs of a society in decay and the first signs manifest with withering inquisitiveness. Once a society starts growing indifferent to information [without which there is no grist for inquisitiveness], it ceases to be dynamic, without which there can be no growth. Stop growing, stop exercising the muscle that flexes ideas and atrophy sets in, and then everything tosses into a downward spiral. It goes without saying that it is inquisitiveness that led mankind out of the caves and into the world of microchips; developed language from monosyllables and clicks & clucks to discourses and epics and communication from shouted greetings to mobile phones and its emojis. It is curiosity, not necessarily necessity, which triggers inventions and changes mindsets. An inquiring mind strengthens democracy, reinforces accountability and substantiates public opinion. Stop being inquisitive, give up asking questions and its back to the stone age when everything happened because it was destined to or dictated by the biggest bully in the cave and no one was wiser.

Turn the mirror on Sikkim, or the neighbouring hills and plains. Whys and wherefores do not infiltrate conversations here which are invariably just litanies of complaints which end up with the most common words on everyone's vocabulary, "Ke Garne, Yestai Ho." A finality in dejection. And therein lies the root of most of the problems, from denials to dejections to corruption to poor human resource development/ deployment. The inquisitiveness is gone, replaced by defeatism, an acceptance of fate and absence of the energy to launch inquisitions. Examples proliferate all around... look around... notice. Someone takes a decision and while everyone nags, and some even wonder, no one demands an explanation.... All this because inquisitiveness and the interest to stay informed remain under-developed.

There could be two reasons for this, one, that the people have given up hope of getting answers, and the second, the people believe they know the reasons. Both are dangerous signs. People cannot give up their inquisitiveness, not in a democracy where it is not only their right to ask questions, but also their responsibility. As for the belief that they know the answers, this is even more dangerous because the belief is not an informed one, it is inferred and it is in situations like these that rumours and canards gain credence, doubts and suspicions proliferate and

Understanding the Root Causes of Natural Disasters

ery year disasters take lives, cause significant conflict and forced migration. Unfortunately, the

In May 2017, policy-makers and disaster management experts from over 180 countries gathered in Cancun, Mexico, to discuss ways to counter this trend.

In the middle of the Cancun summit, news arrived that large parts of Sri Lanka were devastated by floods and landslides, killing at least 150 and displacing almost half a million people.

It was a stark reminder of the summit partici pants' challenging task of paving the way towards reducing disaster losses "significantly" by the year 2030 based on the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction (DRR).

Adopted in 2015, the Sendai Framework out-lines seven targets and four priorities for action to prevent new, and reduce existing, disaster risks to economic, physical, social, cultural, health or envi-ronmental assets and lives of persons, businesses communities and countries.

Since then, in China, a village in the Sichuan province has been devastated by a landslide and escuers are still looking for missing people

THE SOCIAL ROOT CAUSES OF DISASTER

Disasters occur when people are affected by natural or technical hazards - when lives are lost or property is destroyed. As the Swiss writer Max Frisch observed in his 1979 book 'Man in the Holocene', "-only human beings can recognise catastro-phes, provided they survive them; nature recogniss no catastrophes.

Research conducted in Sri Lanka suggests that while heavy rainfall was the trigger for the flooding, the root causes of the disaster were social, in particular widespread poverty, conflict-induced migration and problematic land-use practices. These characteristics are not homogeneous, meaning different places and people are affected differently.

The social characteristics of communities are extremely important for hazard managers because they increase peoples' vulnerability to hazards.

A global community that is dedicated to reducing disaster losses over the next decade must address these social root causes of disaster. If not, the lofty goals of the Sendai Framework will remain elusive. POCKETS OF VULNERABILITY

ACROSS SOCIETIES
Understandably, socially disadvantaged communities exposed to hazards have to date received the most attention from DRR specialists. This is because hazards tend to harm predominantly those social groups that were already disadvantaged be-

Large focus has been placed on "underdeveloped" or "developing" nations, where the social disadvantage factors are particularly obvious. For example, while studying the social aspects of food insecurity during droughts in the Sahel region in the mid-1980s, scientists showed that low-wealth families with many children were particularly susceptible to chronic food insecurity.

But groups of people living in places where the overall socio-economic status is higher can also be vulnerable to hazards, and little is known about these groups.

The assumption that all members of affluent societies are somehow immune to disasters seems to be broadly shared, perhaps because vulnerability may be less obvious. This (mis)belief seems to be reinforced by various attempts to index and compare the vulnerability of communities, regions or whole nations.

In fact, making inferences about disaster vulnerability based on aggregated economic characteristics often leads to misleading conclusions. This problem is known as the 'ecological fallacy', where relationships on the aggregate level do not necessarily hold on the individual level.

For instance, research from the 1990s demonstrated that homeless people in Tokyo (at the time one of the wealthiest cities in the world) were far more vulnerable to earthquake hazards than the average resident. Problematically, emergency planning by government overlooked this 'invisible sub-population. In this case, the 'ecological fallacy meant there was a tendency for emergency planning activities to be directed toward a higher so-cio-economic class.

Additionally, research conducted in the wake of Hurricane Katrina's impact on New Orleans in 2005 has shown that socio-economically disadvantaged households and communities were disproportionally affected by the hurricane. These people lacked the capabilities to prepare for, respond to and recover from the event.

These examples, from affluent and less affluent countries, suggest the need to consider social vulnerability in more geographically and demographically nuanced ways when implementing DRR activities. On the one hand, poorer communities might bring alternative capabilities to DRR that are non-financial. On the other hand, ignoring existing social disadvantage within affluent contexts risks significant loss of life and property, and forgoes the opportunity to improve the circumstances of the affected sub-populations.

THE CASE OF THE 1991 OAK-LAND HILLS WILDFIRE

In order to deepen understanding of social vulnerability in affluent contexts, we recently conducted an interview study on the long-term effects of the 1991 Oakland Hills wildfire in California. The analysis revealed that households with low socio-eco-nomic status actually benefited from the characteristics of the overall community.

Specifically, high levels of political and social capital in the neighbourhood contributed to extensive recovery efforts by public authorities (e.g. infrastructure upgrades). In turn, these measures increased not only the value of the properties of the politically active members of the community (typically higher socio-economic status), but also the value of the homes of the economically weakest families. In this way, resources available at the neighbourhood level mediated the hazard's im-pacts at the household level throughout the com-

Even so, there were sharp differences in the way the 1991 fire affected different sub-groups of the community. During the firestorm elderly residents and people with physical disabilities were especially vulnerable because these people had problems evacuating from the fire zone. After the fire, during the recovery stage, different groups faced difficulties in accessing their insurance, an often cited, but perhaps unreliable resource for recovery. As one female interview participant in the Oakland Hills described: "Demographics count. If you're a single woman, if you're a person of colour, they'll treat you differently. And we were low income. So they accused us of fraud. How could we live here? Even though we had all the proof in the world."

After protracted negations with insurance companies, most financial losses were covered, but the affected citizens reported suffering financial and emotional stress during the, for some, decade-long recovery phase. While the case demonstrated that affluence could mediate household vulnerability, damaging disparities remained nevertheless.

NO MAGIC FORMULA
While the Oakland Hills case is informative, we must avoid uncritically generalising these findings. Understanding social vulnerability is ultimately about understanding the particular geographical and social contexts in which it manifests. What drives social vulnerability in one place may play no role in another. Instead, vulnerability should be understood as a dynamic concept - "a product of specific spatial, socio-economic-demographic, cultural and institutional contexts" that intersect in

The Oakland Hills story does highlight the need to better understand the drivers of vulnerability, in both affluent and less affluent societies, in order to create effective DRR strategies. Research we have begun in Zurich, Switzerland, aims to foster a better understanding of these issues.

This work, again, demonstrates that even in this generally very affluent city, major social disparities exist, with susceptible social groups often being geographically concentrated. In the case of a potential natural hazard, these pockets of vulnerable people are likely to be affected most

KEY KNOWLEDGE FOR EMERGENCY SERVICES AND RISK MANAGERS

Regardless of official interest in poor or affluent societies, questions about the drivers of social vulnerability are of significant practical importance. Understanding which parts of society are susceptible to natural hazards, and why, is key knowledge for emergency services and risk managers.

Across all stages of the disaster cycle – pre-paredness, response, and recovery – knowledge about the nature and location of socially vulnerable groups is critical for effective DRR.

Before an event, knowing which groups have low levels of preparedness is essential for planning tailored risk communication and support initia-tives. During a disaster, information on vulnerable groups can help to increase the effectiveness of response measures, for example, by establishing pri-orities during evacuations.

Finally, an in-depth understanding of vulnerability can be used to support disadvantaged social groups during the recovery process.

Together, these measures can make an important contribution to reducing disaster risk under very different socio-economic circumstances.

The iPhone Turns 10 - and it's isolated us, not united us

theconversation.com

ometime around 2011 or 2012, Sit suddenly became very easy to predict what people would be doing in public places: Most would be looking down at their phones. For years, mobile phones weren't much to look at. The screens were small, and users needed to press the same key several times to type a single letter in a text. Then, 10 years ago – on June 29, 2007 – Apple released the first iPhone.

"Every once in a while a revolutionary product comes along that changes everything," former Apple, Inc. CEO Steve Jobs said during the iPhone's introductory news conference.

Within six years, the majority of Americans owned a smartpho embracing the new technology perhaps faster than any other previous technology had been adopted.

Today, smartphones seem indispensable. They connect us to the internet, give us directions, allow us to quickly fire off texts and – as I discovered one day in spring 2009 can even help you find the last hotel room in Phoenix when your plane is grounded by a dust storm.

Yet research has shown that this convenience may be coming at a cost. We seem to be addicted to our phones; as a psychology researcher, I have read study after study concluding that our mental health and relationships may be suffering. Meanwhile, the first generation of kids to grow up with smartphones is now reaching adulthood, and we're only beginning to see the adverse effects.

SUCKED IN

In the beginning, sociologist Sherry Turkle explained, smartphone users would huddle together, shar-ing what was on their phones.

"As time has gone on, there's been less of that and more of what I call the alone together phenomenon. It has turned out to be an isolating technology," she said in the 2015 documentary "Steve Jobs: The Man in the Machine." "It's a dream machine and you become fascinated by the world you can find on these screens."

This is the new normal: Instead of calling someone, you text them. Instead of getting together for dinner with friends to tell them about your recent vacation, you post the pictures to Facebook. It's convenient, but it cuts out some of the face-to-face interactions that, as social animals, we crave.

More and more studies suggest that electronic communication – unlike the face-to-face interaction it may replace – has negative consequences for mental health. One study asked college students to report on their mood five times a day. The more they had used Facebook, the less happy they were. However, feeling unhappy didn't lead to more Facebook use, which suggests that Facebook was causing unhappiness, not vice versa

Another study examined the impact of smartphones on relationships. People whose partners were more frequently distracted by their phones were less satisfied with their relationships, and - perhaps as a result - were more likely to feel depressed. Nevertheless, we can't stop staring at our phones. In his book "Irresistible," marketing professor Adam Alter makes a convincing case that social media and electronic com-munication are addictive, involving the same brain pathways as drug addiction. In one study, frequent smartphone users asked to put their phones face down on the table grew increasingly anxious the more time passed. They couldn't stand not looking at their phones for just a few minutes.

iGEN: THE SMART

PHONE GENERATION

The rapid market saturation of smartphones produced a noticeable generational break between those born in the 1980s and early 1990s (called millennials) and those born in 1995 and later (called iGen or GenZ), iGen is the first generation to spend their entire adolescence with smartphones.

Although iGen displays many positive characteristics such as lower alcohol use and more limited teen sexuality, the trends in their mental health are more concerning. In the American Freshman Survey, the percentage of entering college students who said they "felt depressed" in the last year doubled between 2009 and 2016. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported a sharp increase in the teen suicide rate over the same time period when smartphones became common. The pattern is certainly suspicious, but at the moment it's difficult to tell whether these trends are caused by smartphones or something else. (It's a question I'm trying to answer with my current research.)

Many also wonder if staring at screens will negatively impact adolescents' budding social skills. At least one study suggests it will. Sixth graders who attended a screen-free camp for just five days improved their skills at reading emotions on others' faces signifi-cantly more than those who spent those five days with their normal high level of screen use. Like anything else, social skills get better with practice. If iGen gets less practice, their social skills may suffer.

Smartphones are a tool, and like most tools, they can be used in pos-itive ways or negative ones. In moderation, smartphones are a convenient – even crucial – technology. Yet a different picture has also emerged over the past decade: Interacting with people face to face usually makes us happy. Electronic communication often doesn't.

Bengal to write to Centre requesting GST roll-out deferment

Kolkata, Jun 27 (PTI): Reiterating that and medium- sized traders in the country were not prepared for the Goods and Services Tax, the West Bengal gov-ernment has decided to write to the Centre again requesting for postpone-ment of the roll-out of the new tax system on "Small and medium-sized traders in the country are not prepared for the GST. And we can foresee that we are heading towards a disastrous situation. We are again writing to the Centre to reconsider the roll-out from July 1 and postpone it until the nation is ready for it," finance minister Amit Mitra told reporters today.

Referring to a report that small traders in Surat were opposing the roll-out of GST because they have "no idea" about the system, Mitra said that the Centre must rethink and postpone the introduction of the new tax regime.

"Not only in West Bengal but we have been getting reports from around 5,000 small and medium traders in Surat are eyeing closure of their businesses because of the GST," he said.

"We have repeatedly said in the GST council that the roll-out must be done systematically. In other countries like Germany and Japan, they had given 12 to 18 months before the introduction of such tax system," he said.

Not for separate Gorkhaland state: BJP

New Delhi, Jun 27 (PTI): The BJP today said it does not support its ally Gorkha Janmukti Morcha's demand for separate state comprising Darjeeling and parts of north Bengal but called for addressing the region's cultural and political concerns.

Its chief Amit Shah who arrived here following a two-day tour of Puducherry, met party leaders, including general secretary and Bengal in-charge Kailash Vijayvargiya. A BJP leader, however, played down the meeting's import, saying Shah routinely meets party leaders and it should not be linked with the issue. Earlier in the day, Vijayvargiya told reporters that his party does not support the demand of a separate state and blamed the state's Mamata Baner-jee government for triggering a crisis by under mining the Gorkha Terri-torial Administration.

He said the cultural and political concerns of the people in the region needed to be addressed and the BJP was for empowering the GTA and taking other measures.

Party sources said a separate state of Gorkhaland, as is the GTA's demand, would create security concerns due to its location, it shares borders with Nepal, and would be economically unfeasible too.

They said a delegation could meet Home Minister Rajnath Singh, asking him to take measures to the people in the region.

Indrani alleges she was beaten up in Byculla jail, moves court

MUMBAI, JUN 27 (PTI): ra murder ca accused Indrani Mukerjea, recently booked for rioting in a women's prison here along with other inmates today moved a court here alleging that she was beaten up by jail officials when the prisoners protested the death of a convict.

Taking note of her complaint, a CBI court, which is hearing the Sheena murder case, directed the prison authorities to produce Indrani before it tomorrow.

Her lawyer Gunjan

Mangla filed an application in the court saying when she went to meet Indrani, the latter told her that she was beaten up by jail officials after the death of the woman prisoner.

"She showed me her bruise marks and injuries which were very prominent on her hands, legs and head," the lawyer claimed in the application.

Gunjan said Indrani also said that she was verbally abused by jail officials and the superintendent. Following the death of the woman convict, Manju Govind Shette, on Friday, the enraged inmates rose in protest on Saturday, some of them went up to the prison's roof, while others made a bonfire of newspapers and documents inside the premises to express their anger, a police officer earlier said.

Later, the Nagpada police booked nearly 200 inmates of the Byculla jail, including Indrani, for rioting, unlawful assembly, assault on a public servant and other relevant sections of the Indian Penal Code.

Pacquiao eyeing Mayweather rematch, says trainer

SYDNEY, JUN 27 (AFP): A rematch between Floyd Mayweather and Manny Pacquiao could be on the cards if the leg-endary Filipino boxer wins his bout against Australian challenger Jeff Horn this weekend, his trainer said today.

Pacquiao, who was outpointed by Mayweather in the "Fight of the Century" two years ago, will be the strong favourite when he defends his world title against the unbeaten Horn in Brisbane.

But the Horn fight could be critical to whether the "Pac-Man" secures another super-fight with his American rival, Freddie Roach told reporters in Brisbane.

"He (Horn) can derail us really badly. Manny is, I think, in a must-win situation. He wants a rematch with Mayweather,"

"And I mean to get Mayweather you have to look good against Jeff Horn, he has to look good, he has to be impressive.

"I think there is a lot riding on this fight and I feel Manny has to look really good in this fight and the way the training camp went, I think he will."

Pacquiao was coy about a possible rematch, stressing that his focus was on the World Boxing Organisation welterweight title fight against 29-year-old former schoolteacher Horn at Brisbane's Suncorp Stadium.

"If there's a chance, why not. I'm willing, but let's focus first eight-weight world champion told reporters when asked about fighting Mayweather again. "We don't want to underestimate Horn thinking about another fight, this fight is not done yet.

Google fined record 2.4 bn euros by EU

BRUSSELS, JUN 27 (AFP): The EU slapped Google with a record 2.4-billion-euro anti-trust fine today, in a fresh assault on a US tech giant that risks the wrath of Presi-dent Donald Trump. Hard-charging Euro-

"What Google has done is illegal under EU antitrust rules. It denied other companies the chance to compete on the merits and to innovate," Vestager said in a statement.

Sikh couple in UK told 'they can't adopt white child'

LONDON, JUN 27 (PTI): A Sikh couple in the UK have claimed that they were refused per-mission to adopt a white child because of their "cultural heritage" and told to adopt a child from India instead.

and Sandeep Mander, British-born business professionals from Berkshire, were quoted by The Times as saying that they were told not to apply to become adoptive parents on the basis that white British or European applicants would be given preference. The couple, who are of Sikh-Indian heritage, had told Adopt Berkshire adoption agency that they would be de-lighted to adopt a child of any ethnic background but were rejected as potential parents on the grounds that only white children were available.

The Manders, both in their 30s, claim they were told to adopt a child from India instead.

Adoption agencies are al-owed to prioritise on the basis of race in order to match children to prospective par-ents of the same ethnic background. But the government has also said that a child's eth-nicity should not be a barrier to adoption. Manders, whose cause has been taken up by Prime Minister Theresa May as their local MP, will take their case to court.

They are applying to Slough county court, seeking a declaration that the policy should allow them to adopt. They are being represented by the law firm McAllister Olivarius and their case is supported by the Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC).

The Manders had an assessment and home visit from Adopt Berkshire, an agency run by the Royal Borough of and Maidenhead (RBWM), last year.

They were allegedly told that, while in other respects they would be suitable adoptive parents, they could not apply because only white children were available for adoption and therefore white couples would be given priority.

Adopt Berkshire has not commented on the allegations

but its website says that it welcomes applicants from different cultural, religious and sexual backgrounds.

Mander, vice-president of sales at Continuum Commerce Solutions, a payments technology company, said that the couple had been trying to conceive for seven years, including 16 sessions of IVF treatment, and decided to adopt.

"Having attended introduc tory workshops organised by RBWM and Adopt Berkshire, giving an adopted child no matter what race the security of a loving home was all we wanted to do," he told the daily. "What we didn't expect was a refusal for us to even apply for adoption, not because of our incapability to adopt, but because our cultural heritage was defined as 'Indian/ Pakistani," he said. The Manders tried at first to get the agency's decision reversed through the council's complaints procedure and the Local Government Ombudsman, which is awaiting the outcome of their legal action.

India, US to cooperate against JeM, LeT; ask Pak to rein in terror groups

YOSHITA SINGH AND LALIT WASHINGTON, JUN 27 (PTI):

India and the US today vowed to strengthen cooperation against terror outfits like Mohammad. Lashkar-e-Taiba and D-Company, while urging Pakistan to ensure that its soil is not used for terror strikes against other nations.

In a joint statement released after talks between Prime Minister Narendra Modi and President Donald Trump, the two nations also called on Islamabad to "expeditiously bring to justice the per-petrators of the 26/11 Mumbai, Pathankot, and other cross-border terrorist attacks perpetrated by Pakistan- based groups."

Briefing reporters on the meeting, Foreign Secretary, S Jaishankar said counter-terrorism was a major issue that was discussed between Trump and Modi during the day.

He also said the joint statement could not have been more explicit on the issue of cross border-terrorism being perpe-trated by terror groups from the neighbouring country's soil. "There was a broad and extensive discussion on Pakistan.

On certain issues it was very detailed," he said, adding that there was a converging viewpoint of what is the problem and diagnose the problem. In another strong reference to Pakistan, Jaishankar said there was an extensive discus-sion between the two leaders on terrorism, "what its epicenter is"

and how it is affecting the region particularly the South Asian reon where India is located.

"It is not just an India situation. A lot of the discussions also related to what was happening in Afghanistan," he said.

Resolving to fight together against this grave challenge to humanity, the two leaders announced increased cooperation "to prevent terrorist travel and to disrupt global recruitment efforts by expanding intelligence-sharing and operational-level countterrorism cooperation."

The statement said that the two leaders committed to strengthen cooperation against terror threats from groups including Al-Qaeda, ISIS, Jaish-e-Mohammad, Lash-kar-e-Taiba, D-Company and their affiliates.

The two leaders recognised that terrorism is a "global scourge" which must be fought and terrorist safe havens rooted out in every part of the world.

Jaishankar said the designation of Hizbul Mujahideen leader Syed Salahuddin by the US as a Specially Designated Global Terrorist "is a strong sig-nal coming out of the administration that it is committed to ending terror in all forms."

"We should take the step for what it is. It is fixing responsibility, highlighting the problem. There is a signalling out of it, it is focusing on a particular group and particular individual. None of us can really miss that mes sage," he said.

The two sides also agreed to have a new consultation mechanism on domestic and international terrorist designations and listing proposals.

Modi and Trump welcomed the exchange of information on known and suspected terrorists for travel screening.

"They further resolved to strengthen information exchange on plans, movements and linkag es of terrorist groups and their leaders, as well as on raising and moving of funds by terrorist groups," the statement said.

The leaders affirmed their support for a UN Comprehen-

Terrorism that will advance and strengthen the framework for global collaboration and rein-force the message that no cause or grievance justifies terrorism.

"They also pledged to work together to prevent prolifer-ation of weapons of mass destruction and their delivery sys-tems and to deny access to such weapons by terrorists and non-state actors," the statement said.

Jaishankar also said there were discussions on issues in the Indian Ocean region, Middle-East in the context of security, and on Afghanistan, particularly the US policy review on it.

"On Afghanistan, the prime minister expressed our appreciation of the sacrifices that America has made to strength en democracy in the country. On the Indian Ocean, we empha-sized the importance of rule of law, requirement to follow international norms and ensure freedom of navigation," he said.

The White House, in a fact sheet, said that the United States and India are committed to combatting terrorism in all its forms and to strengthening cooperation on terrorist screening, intelligence, and informa-tion sharing, terrorist use of the internet, and multilateral terrorist designations.

"Reflecting this partnership, the US Terrorist Screening Center and Indian counterparts are cross-screening known and suspected terrorists for investiga-tive and intelligence purposes," the White House said.

The X-Men franchise has found a new character for its upcoming film, and it could be meant for Taylor Swift. Alison Blaire, also known as the mutant Dazzler, is a teenage pop star who reluctantly joins the X-Men in the comic books.

In X-Men: Dark Phoenix, directed by Simon Kinberg, Dazzler is expected to join the original ensemble, Entertainment Weekly reports. And according to actress Sophie Turner, Swift could be playing her.

Last year, in a "flash back Friday" moment on Insta-

of the last film where her character Jean Grev is looking at an album cover by Dazzler.

Rumours at the time gained traction when Swift received a visit at her recording studio from the X-Men cast

Now that the studio has reportedly confirmed the character's appear-ance in the next film, Swift could be making her way to the Marvel Cinematic Universe. She also starred alongside Jeff Bridges in the young adult film The Giver, after making her debut in the 2010 romantic comedy

Valentine's Day.

X-Men: Dark Phoenix is scheduled to be released in November 2018.

Salvador Dali's body to be exhumed for paternity test

children while he was alive.

Martinez's mother Antonia was a maid who had worked for a family in Cadaques, Spain, where Dali had a home. The woman said her mother often told her Dali was her father. Martinez first publicly made the claim that Dali was her father in 2015. She went under two paternity tests in 2007 but did not receive the
